By : Laurence

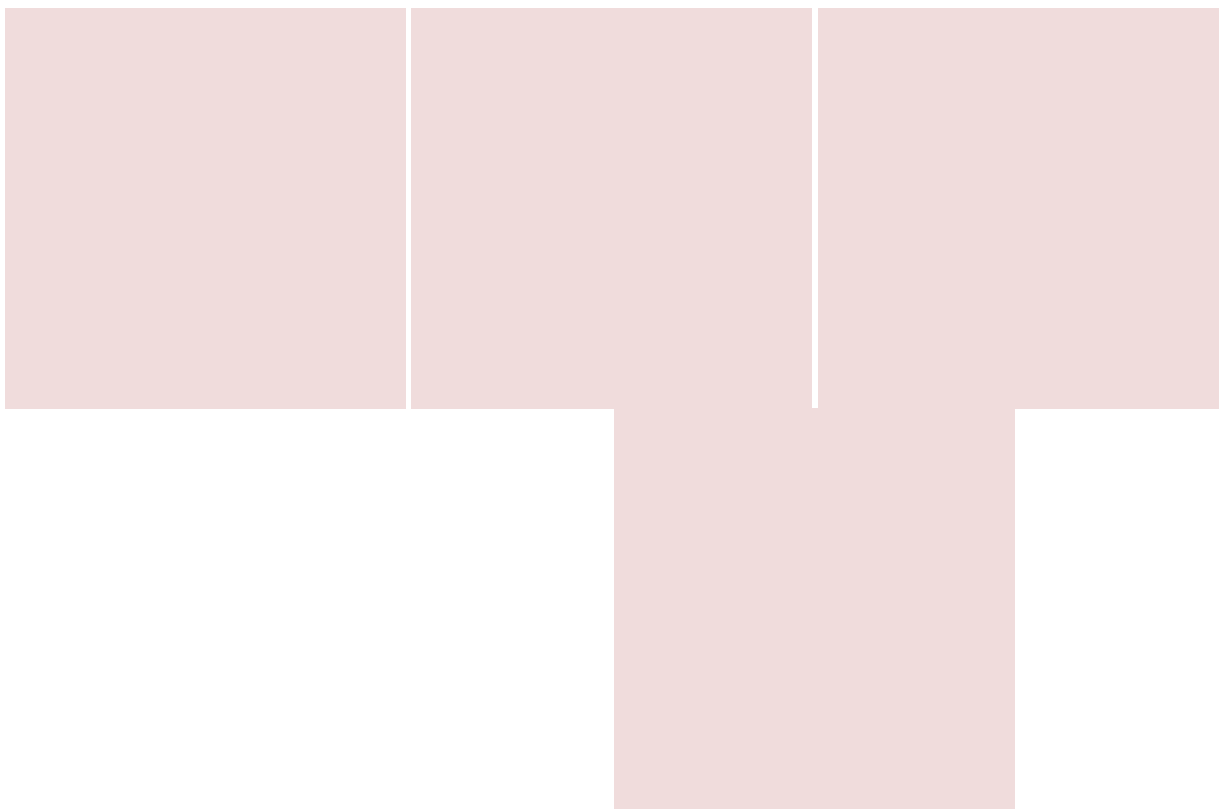

The tangled chains, the orphaned earring, the untraceable ring... Let's face it, it's a bit of a mess in our little jewelry box! In the morning, we sometimes spend as much time getting ready as we do looking for the last homemade bracelet we made with our hands. If, like us, you have often wondered how to store costume jewelry efficiently and optimally, here are some practical ideas that should please you!

How to store your earrings?

Whether you make it yourself or it's ready-made, the jewelry holder is the ideal accessory to hang your earrings. Equipped with hooks or cuffs, it will allow you to organize your earrings by keeping them in pairs. It can be placed on a dresser or a vanity, or hung on the wall, so you will always have your creations at hand.

Wondering how to make a jewelry holder? Follow our tutorials to create a jewelry holder with golden handles in polymer clay and a jewelry holder decorated with Fimo clay.

Jewelry racks are not just for earrings. They will also be very practical to not let your necklaces and bracelets drag and tangle anymore.

How to store rings?

It is not easy to find an efficient DIY ring storage. There are two solutions: you can display them in full view by putting them on a ring holder or a ring display, and choose at first sight the one you will wear this morning.

You can also choose to store them in a small box. The advantage is that they will be protected from air and dust. The disadvantage is that you'll have to remember which box to put which ring in (especially if you have a lot of them!)

How to store bracelets?

Cups are perfect for this, especially for hard bracelets and bangles. Plus, they're a real decorative item that will fit perfectly in your home.

Give a bohemian chic air to your room with a cup "nature", made of hemp thread, or a mystical air with a cup on the astral theme in Fimo clay.

Your handmade jewelry will no longer drag on your furniture or in the bathroom with our cup "fox" and our cup "rabbit" polymer clay.
