Thanks to this tutorial, you can make a 2 in 1 jewel, which can be worn as a bracelet or as a necklace. To do this, take your measurements and adapt them so that they correspond to both two or three turns of the wrist as well as a more or less long turn of the neck according to your preferences.

As for the colour, we propose a sweet marriage between pearls with pinkish nuances and golden pearls. Of course, you are free to modify the colors by choosing among all the references of Kalos glass beads by Puca, and all the references of Miyuki seed beads 8/0 available on our site.

To make this multi-row bracelet, we chose to mix several of our favorite beads and primers: Miyuki golden seed beads, zircon charms and spacers, Kalos by Puca and a buoy clasp. Well beyond its function as a clasp, the buoy model is today the star element of a jewel and easily takes the central place in the creation. And if like us you are a fan of the buoy clasp, we invite you to discover our tutorial: Freshwater pearl choker necklace and maxi buoy clasp

steps

★ Step 1/5

Measure the thread by making 4 turns around your wrist to have 2 threads per row at the end to insert the puca beads which are composed of 2 holes. Cut this wire in 2 then hung the 2 ends to the clasp and inserted them in the same stone to crush then add a cover.

★ Step 2/5

String the beads in this order:

- 1 gold bead (which takes the 2 wires)
- 1 pink gold Puca bead
- 2 gold beads (one on each thread)
- 1 pink gold Puca bead

★ Step 3/5

Let's continue by putting in this order :

- 1 gold bead
- 1 Puca gold bead
- 1 compass rose charm
- 1 Puca gold bead
- 1 gold bead

Repeat step 2 and step 3 without the charm, alternating the puca gold and lila beads every other time.

★ Step 4/5

Continue to string the beads until you are just under halfway through. Then thread the first zircon. Then halfway through put on the second wind rose charm

★ Step 5/5

Repeat the assembly of beads until symmetry is achieved.
Then attach the end to the clasp following the same technique as step 1
And here is an elegant and simple bracelet to make!
