steps

★ Step 1/4

To finish, you need to thread a squeeze bead at the end of your threading, leaving about 3-4cm of thread after the squeeze bead. Thread a squeeze bead, then the wire guard by passing the wire through the first tube of the wire end cap, around the U-shaped semicircle, and out through the second tube. Then pass the wire back through the bead to be crushed. Repeat the step on both sides of the bracelet.

★ Step 2/4

Slide the crush bead onto the base of the wire guard. Flatten it with a pair of flat pliers to hold the wire in place. Then push the wire end back through the beads for a few centimetres. Repeat the step on both sides of the bracelet.

★ Step 3/4

Measure the circumference of your handle. Cut a piece of wire 8 cm longer than the size of your handle, about 25 cm for this bracelet.

Thread the beads as shown in the photo:

- 8 mother of pearl beads, 1 gold diamond bead, 1 green turquoise bead, 1 other gold diamond bead, 8 mother of pearl beads, 1 gold diamond bead, 6 green turquoise beads.

Next, thread a gold bead and then your first mother-of-pearl star, then alternate a gold bead and a star until you have threaded all 4 stars and finish with a gold bead. Repeat the threading from the beginning on the other side of the stars.

★ Step 4/4

Take an open ring and pass the lobster clasp through the ring, then hook and fasten this ring to one of the wire guards and on the other do the same with a ring and extension chain to make your bracelet adjustable in length.
