What to do with ceramic beads?

Ceramic beads are handmade beads. They are therefore all slightly different, which is what makes them so charming. They are part of the Arts and Crafts trend that emphasizes craftsmanship and artistry. The ceramic beads used in this tutorial are made in Europe, as are most of the products used here.

These handmade beads come in a variety of sizes and colors. Feel free to look at our selection in the variation section at the bottom of the page, or have a look at the ceramic beads category. Creoles also exist in smaller and larger sizes. These have a wire diameter of 1.6 mm, which allows you to string some beads. Please note that if you change the beads in these creoles, make sure that the hole in the beads is large enough. This information is indicated on the page of each bead.

The version of the creoles presented here is a bit heavy. If you are not used to heavy earrings, then take the 37 mm earrings. In this case, put only 1 or 2 round ceramic beads per earring. You can also replace the ceramic heishi with 6 mm polymer heishi, which are much lighter.

steps

The stoppers of the creoles are a bit hard to put on. Start by putting them on, then take them off several times to soften them.

★ Step 2/3

Then string your beads and finish with a stopper bead. These are small beads with a rubber interior that will prevent the beads from sliding out of the creole. You can remove them afterwards to replace the beads. So you don't need to have several creole beads! Buy the beads you want and replace them on them throughout the year.
