How to personalize an ear stud?

Welcome to this tutorial. Today I'm going to show you how to make a pair of earrings using stainless steel chandelier studs. This easy tutorial will help you brush up on the basics of jewelry-making. To make this jewel, you'll need to close several rings and create loops on a stud (we've got magic pliers for that).

I've chosen to use mini-pompons and charms, but you're free to choose the pendants of your choice to accessorize these studs. The five closed rings on these stud earrings are perfect for hanging chain, pearls, charms, sequins... So let your imagination run wild!

With DIY jewelry, everything is infinitely modifiable and customizable. This pair of earrings is also perfect for playing with asymmetry, as you can choose different pendants for each of the studs. If you wish, you can also choose twenty or so pendants, and change them regularly according to your outfit, mood or the season, to bring a little renewal to your jewelry box.

This tutorial joins the Precious Moments collection, a 100% stainless steel collection. In this collection, we've put together a set of tutorials that will become your favorite jewels (especially for the summer season) and allies over the years. Stainless steel is a durable material that doesn't oxidize, which is why we've chosen to offer you timeless jewelry that will accompany you from year to year.

Here are a few jewelry pieces that will go well with these earrings:
