How to make a minimalist piece of jewelry from natural stones?

Welcome to this new tutorial! Today, I'm showing you how to make a necklace from natural stones. You'll need a wire, beads of your choice, a clasp, thread and a small charm. Thanks to the reduced number of steps, this project is accessible to all levels, even beginners. It's easy to get started.

For this jewel, I opted for 3 mm tourmaline beads. On our site, you'll find a vast choice of natural stones, giving you the opportunity to personalize your creations according to your tastes and desires.

This necklace is ideal worn alone for a minimalist look. It also works perfectly layered with other necklaces, adding depth and character to your outfit. You can combine it with this tutorial, for example: Stainless steel necklace with astro sign charm, or take a look at our range of stainless steel chokers.

This tutorial is part of the "Indian Summer" collection, which celebrates the beauty of natural stones. This green-hued collection will be perfect for welcoming autumn with serenity.

For your information, the heart charm is located 9 cm from the clasp and the necklace measures 39cm in total (without taking into account the whole fastening part). You can adjust the dimensions to suit your taste.

★ Step 1/6

Cut a length of wire, insert a wire guard and a squeeze bead. Pass through the second hole in the wire guard and back through the squeeze bead.

★ Step 2/6

Crush the bead using flat-nose pliers

★ Step 3/6

String the pearls. Once you've strung 30cm of pearls, slip on the charm, and start stringing again. (For information, in the photos, the necklace is 39cm long, not counting the clasp and fastening).

★ Step 4/6

Once you've reached the desired length, repeat steps 1 and 2 to close your necklace. Then hide the excess thread in the pearls.

★ Step 5/6

For the final step, add a ring to each wire guard. And in one of the rings, a clasp.

★ Step 6/6

Add crush bead covers to the crush beads.
