Which thread to choose for a pearly bead bracelet?

Mark the new season with this pearly white bracelet in round beads! In this early autumn season, I'd like to offer you this accessible and easy-to-make tutorial for beginners. To create this bracelet, you'll need very few tools: crush-bead pliers, flat-nose pliers and a ruler. For this tutorial, I'm using a gold flower clasp with a zirconium oxide heart, which has the particularity of attaching to the front of the bracelet to add a decorative touch to the beads. The little plus of the clasp is its European quality, which guarantees the jewel's durability.

In the same style, there are other clip-on clasp references to vary the pleasures: other flower and heart shapes are available.

For those who love pearls, I suggest round imitation freshwater pearls, 8 mm in diameter. Their lightness makes them ideal for adding an elegant touch to your wrist. This jewel will bring a subtle sophistication to your evening outfits. You can personalize your creation as you wish, for example, by using resin beads or 6 mm CCB golden round beads, equally perfect for festive occasions.

Pearly-effect pearls are a true timeless item, and the flower clasp is a great classic, very much in vogue on the fashion week catwalks, bringing with it a breath of vintage style. This is your chance to jump on the trend and create your very own autumn essential! This tutorial can be used to create the necklace version, or the whole set for the most motivated! If you're so inclined, remember to add more bead bags to your basket. This tutorial is so easy, it will only take 10 minutes of your time to create your new must-have.

The whole Perles & Co team is curious to see your creations, so don't hesitate to share them with us on social networks - it's up to you!

★ Step 1/2

Cut 26 cm of fishing line. Thread a pearl to be crushed, then pass the thread through one of the clasp rings. Pass the end of the thread back through the crush pearl and allow it to protrude by about 1 to 2 cm. Flatten the bead with special pliers and fold it in half. Watch this video to see how to properly fold a crush pearl.

Place a crush pearl cover over the pearl and fold it over using flat-nose pliers. Take your time to give it a nice round shape as you fold it over.

★ Step 2/2

Thread your beads and pass the double piece of wire through the beads. Make a bracelet the length of your wrist +3 cm and check that the length is right for you by testing the bracelet on your wrist. Once the threading length is right, thread a crush bead, pass the thread through the other ring of the clasp and pass the thread back through the crush bead. Tighten without forcing, then finish as in step 1. Add a pearl cover over the bead to be crushed.
