How to make a gri-gri necklace?

Assemble a 4-leaf clover necklace in less than 5 minutes: Select a stainless steel choker, add pendant fasteners and choose the color of your hand-cut stone clover pendant. All you have to do is attach the pendant fastener, also known as a bélière, to the chosen stone pendant, then thread the whole onto the choker fitted with a pre-assembled clasp.

Gri-gri pendants are available in a range of colors. Some are made from real, cut natural stones, while others are "Hydro" creations. What does Hydro mean for a stone? It's a manufacturing process that consists of reproducing hard stones using a mixture of powder from the stone family and tinted glass. In this case, it's green, yellow and red clover. Nevertheless, they're no less pretty. Personally, I'm a fan of this Peridot color, as well as pink Chalcedony. These colorful clover pendants go perfectly with an off-white sweater or blouse for a Casual Chic style. The Labradorite or moonstone clover will be perfect for summer on tanned skin and a Bohemian look.

Little tip: I only have a few chains in my jewelry box. When I want to change the pendants on my necklaces, all I have to do is remove them from the chain using the bélière, or open the ring on the pendant and attach a new one. So there's no need to multiply the number of necklaces in your jewelry box! I buy stainless steel or gold filled chains for long life.
