steps

★ Step 1/5

Cut about 20 cm of nylon turtle thread. Thread a Crimp bead followed by a closed ring.

★ Step 2/5

Pass the end of the wire back through the Crimp bead to form a loop around the ring. Leave about 1-2 cm of wire after the bead, then crush it firmly with crush bead pliers or flat-nose pliers. Then add a crushable bead cover for a clean finish, and close it gently with flat-nose pliers.

If you're a first-timer, you may like to refer to this data sheet: Making pretty finishes with Crimp beads

★ Step 3/5

Then string the beads in any order you like. The order here is: 12 pink coral chip beads / 2 gold chip beads / 4 pink coral chip beads / 2 gold chip beads / 2 small turquoise coral beads / 1 turquoise coral pendant / 1 small turquoise coral bead / 1 turquoise coral pendant / 2 small turquoise coral beads / 2 gold chip beads / 9 beads chips pink coral / 2 beads chips gold / 2 small beads turquoise coral / 1 pendant turquoise coral / 1 small beads turquoise coral / 1 pendant turquoise coral / 2 small beads turquoise coral / 2 beads chips gold / 12 beads chips pink coral

---

★ Step 4/5

Finish by threading a Crimp bead followed by an open ring (the one you'll use to secure your clasp). As in step 2, pass the thread back through the crush bead, then crush it as before.

Then add a crush bead cover for a clean finish, and close it gently with flat-nose pliers.

---

Step 5/5

Attach the Lobster Clasp to the open ring by opening it with pliers, then close tightly.
To open and close your bracelet on a daily basis, simply hook the lobster clasp onto the closed ring at the other end.
