How to make a bead necklace?

We're back with our Odyssée Perlée collection, a series of DIY tutorials inspired by the marine world, which we featured last year and which is making a comeback this summer! Seashell and shellfish jewelry is a must-have for this spring/summer season! Today, I'm proposing a necklace that mixes ceramic beads with freshwater pearls, enhanced by gold stainless steel beads and marine-themed charms. Designed as a strong yet easy-to-wear piece, this marine necklace will add an elegant, natural touch to your summer outfits.

Ceramic beads add a handcrafted touch, while freshwater pearls add a natural, luminous note to the composition. Combined with hard-wearing, nickel-free stainless steel gold beads, they offer a refined finish that works equally well with casual wear or a dressier occasion. This natural, marine-style necklace is perfect for a light dress, swimsuit or bohemian outfit. It captures the essence of vacation and accompanies all your summer looks with simplicity and character.

Feel free to adapt this necklace to suit your tastes! We have a wide choice of ceramic beads with a marine theme. The same goes for small marine charms: we have a whole range of over 100 charms in this theme on the site. Stainless steel charms complete the design with careful decorative detail. Stainless steel is the material of choice for jewelry design: it doesn't tarnish or oxidize, and is suitable for sensitive skin.

This DIY beach jewelry is ideal for beginners as well as for more experienced designers looking to enrich their DIY jewelry collection. Whether you want to create a piece of jewelry for yourself, give it as a gift or add it to your handmade boutique, this ceramic bead necklace tutorial is a great source of inspiration.

★ Step 1/1

Now you can start stringing the beads. Here, I've threaded rather randomly, alternating between: brown ceramic round beads, gold ceramic round beads, freshwater pearls, stainless steel shell beads, charm attachment beads and ceramic turtle - shell - starfish - fish beads.

Here, I've chosen to place the polka-dot fish in the center and add the charm beads close enough so that they remain on the front of the necklace when worn.
