How to make a necklace multirangs silver 925 ?
Create your 925 Sterling silver necklace yourself by following this DIY beginner's tutorial . This necklace is easy to make and resume the basics of jewelry fitting . You do not like Malachite? Other pierced stones are available such as onyx , turquoise or Lapis Lazuli .

Long necklace Malachite pendant:
Cut the chain to the desired length. Here it is 38 cm. If you cut it to this size you will also be able to create a 925 sterling silver mini bracelet with the rest of the material. Glue the Malachite cabochon 4 mm on the pendant with jewelry glue . Once dry, open the ring of the bail and slide the pendant. Be careful to open a ring do not spread the ends but rotate them, as well to close them. Thread the bail onto the chain. Attach a mini lace clamp on each side of the chain. Then add two open rings at the end and the carabiner clasp.
Faceted Bohemian necklace:
Cut 50 cm of wired wire. Thread a crimp bead and a closed ring and then wrap the wired wire back into the crimp bead to create a loop. Be careful once the wired wire is bent it does not return to its original shape. Place the crimp bead against the ring and tighten the wire. Flatten the crimp bead with a special crimp bead plier and fold it in half. Thread at least 83 2mm faceted beads see more if you want a longer necklace. Then put on 11 facets of Bohemian 3 mm and again 83 facets 2 mm. Repeat the beginning operation to close the collar. Add the collar to the first by threading the closed rings into the open rings of the first.

Necklace with pierced Malachites:
As with the previous collar, cut a piece of wired wire and repeat the process of adding a crimp bead and a closed ring. You will adjust the length of the collar at the end. Thread 1 2mm facet, 1 Bohemian 3mm facet, 20 Malachite pierced 4mm, 1 Bohemian facet 3mm and 1 facet 2mm. Adjust the length and finish before attaching it to the other two necklaces.
